Please read this first

This book is a general wellness and recipe guide. It is not medical advice, and it is not a substitute for advice, diagnosis or treatment from a qualified health professional. The blends here are made from everyday whole foods, but everybody is different: allergies, medications, pregnancy, breastfeeding, diabetes, kidney conditions and other health circumstances can all change what suits you.

Please talk to your doctor or another qualified professional before you start a new eating pattern, a reset plan, or a big change to your diet — especially if you are pregnant, breastfeeding, managing a medical condition, or taking medication. If a recipe contains something you are allergic or sensitive to, leave it out or use one of the swaps suggested. Stop and seek advice if anything makes you feel unwell.

Listen to your body first, this book second. Small, steady habits beat dramatic overhauls every time.

> 🌿 A promise from The Wellness Herb: no fads, no guilt, no “perfect” eating. Just real fruit, real greens, a blender, and a few minutes a day. That is enough — and you are enough, exactly as you are, starting today.

Nutritional notes in this book describe foods in general terms. They are not claims that any single smoothie will treat, cure or prevent any illness.

Tip: in the PDF edition, tap any entry above to jump straight there. The Recipe Finder (page linked above) groups all 116 blends by benefit, so you can pick in seconds — lighter blends, cleansing blends, glow blends, or fuel for a demanding day.

> How this book works: read Part 1 once, skim Part 2, then start blending. Every recipe stands on its own — no need to read in order. Tick the boxes, rate your favourites, and use the trackers at the back to build a habit that actually sticks.

Welcome — Start Here

🌿 BLEND NATURE. FEEL BETTER.

Hello, and welcome to your blender. If you have ever stood in the kitchen wondering how to get more greens, more colour and more energy into an ordinary day — without a complicated diet, expensive gadgets or hours of cooking — you are in exactly the right place.

This book holds 116 blends made from fruit, vegetables, herbs, seeds, oats and simple pantry staples. Some are sweet and creamy. Some are green and zingy. A few are savoury, surprising, and completely delicious. All of them take minutes, use one blender, and leave you with something you made yourself, from real ingredients you can name.

You do not need to be “a smoothie person” already. You only need a blender, a handful of greens, and a willingness to try one glass.

How to use this book

1. Read Part 1 once. It teaches you the building blocks — greens, fruit, superfoods, liquids and flavour — so you can improvise with confidence.
2. Skim Part 2. Shopping, washing, freezing and blending basics, plus quick fixes for every texture problem.
3. Pick from the Recipe Finder. Choose by benefit: lighter blends, cleansing blends, glow blends, or fuel for a demanding day — each group opens with its own introduction.
4. Blend, taste, tick. Each recipe has boxes to mark when you made it, whether you loved it, and a star rating. Your favourites will find themselves.
5. Follow the 7-Day Kickstart when you are ready, and use the trackers in Part 5 to keep the habit alive past week one.

> 🖨 How to print this book. This edition is set for print as well as for screen: 6 × 9 in pages with a wider inner margin for binding, dark text on white pages, and colour used sparingly, so it prints well in colour or in greyscale. Print double-sided at 100% (“Actual size”), choosing 6 × 9 in if your printer offers it — otherwise A5 or US Letter, scaled to fit the page. Print single-sided for the tracker, favourites log and notes pages, so you can write on them freely. If you have it bound at a print shop, ask them to keep the inner margin as set; it is already allowed for. On screen, the contents, finder and index links are all clickable.

My smoothie why

People keep habits that mean something to them. Before your first blend, write yours down. There are no wrong answers.

I want to feel more… _____

I am starting this because… _____

My first blend will be number… _____ on _____ (date)

One person I would love to blend for: _____

Find your blend style — 3 quick questions

Tick one answer per question, then follow the pointers underneath.

1. How do you feel about green flavours?

☐ Love them — the greener, the better ☐ Happy if fruit leads ☐ Nervous — hide the greens, please

2. When will you usually blend?

☐ Rushed weekday mornings ☐ Leisurely weekends ☐ After exercise ☐ As a light evening refresh

3. What do you want most from a smoothie?

☐ Something filling that replaces a meal ☐ Something light and cleansing ☐ Something gentle on sugar ☐ Something new to explore

Mostly “love greens” / “explore”: start with Anti-Aging & Glow and Live Long — Vitality & Strength, where greens meet berries, seeds and citrus. Mostly “hide the greens”: start with Lose Weight — Light & Lean and Energy & Strength — Fuel & Full, where fruit and creamy bases do the talking. Mostly “rushed”: start with Detoxify — Clean & Refresh and the 5-step method in Part 2. Mostly “filling”: start with Energy & Strength — Fuel & Full, and add oats, nut butter or protein powder as suggested. Mostly “light”: start with Detoxify — Clean & Refresh and the Gentle 3-Day Reset in Part 4.

Part 1 · Smoothie Foundations

🌿 LEARN THE BUILDING BLOCKS ONCE — IMPROVISE FOREVER

> 🌿 The only rule that matters: make the blend you will actually drink. A simple smoothie you love beats a “perfect” one you avoid. Start easy, stay curious, and let your taste buds lead.

Six short chapters. Read them in an evening, or dip in as you go. Everything here is practical: what each ingredient does in the glass, how to choose it, and how to swap it when your fridge disagrees with the recipe.

Why Smoothies Work

A smoothie is not magic. It is simply whole foods, broken down small, in a glass — which turns out to be a remarkably useful idea. Blending keeps the fibre of fruits and vegetables intact, unlike juicing, which throws much of it away. Fibre slows digestion, helps you feel full, and keeps energy steadier than a sugary drink alone.

Blending also solves the oldest healthy-eating problem: volume. A generous handful of spinach, half a cucumber and a stick of celery would be a lot of chewing as a salad. Blended with mango and a squeeze of lime, they become a few easy sips. You eat more plants without thinking about it, and you actually enjoy doing it.

Then there is the habit effect. A smoothie is fast, repeatable and hard to get badly wrong. Habits that are fast and repeatable are habits that survive busy weeks — and it is the repetition, not any single glass, that changes how you feel over time.

What a good daily blend tends to give you

- More plants, with less effort. Greens and fruit you might skip at lunch slip easily into breakfast.
- Steadier mornings. Fibre plus healthy fat or protein keeps hunger away longer than toast and jam alone.
- Hydration. Water-rich fruit, cucumber and a proper liquid base all count towards your fluids for the day.
- Variety without planning. Change one fruit or one green and the same formula tastes brand new.
- A small daily win. Starting the day by making something nourishing sets a kinder tone for everything after it.

> 🌿 Keep expectations honest. A smoothie supports a healthy pattern; it does not cancel out the rest of the day, and it cannot fix poor sleep or stress on its own. Think of it as one strong, simple habit among several — sleep, movement, water, and food that is mostly whole and minimally processed.

Your foundations checklist — tick as you read:

☐ I know why fibre matters in a blend (it stays in — unlike juice).

☐ I have a liquid base, a green, and a fruit ready for my first blend.

☐ I will taste before pouring, and adjust rather than bin a blend.

The Greens Guide

Greens are the heart of this book. They bring colour, fibre, minerals and a fresh, clean flavour — and, handled well, they never dominate the glass. The secret is rotation: use different greens through the week, start with mild ones, and let fruit do the sweetening while you build confidence.

Green	Flavour & texture	Best for
Spinach	Mild, soft, almost disappears	Every beginner blend; the safest first green
Kale	Earthy, sturdy; remove stems	Hearty green blends; pair with pineapple or mango
Romaine lettuce	Crisp, light, very mild	Clean, hydrating blends; a gentle kale alternative
Swiss chard	Mild, slightly earthy; remove stems	Creamy blends with avocado or banana
Cucumber	Cool, watery, refreshing	Savoury and light blends; adds volume without heaviness
Celery	Distinctive, salty-green; start with one stalk	Savoury blends; pairs with apple, lemon and herbs
Dandelion leaves	Strong and bitter — use sparingly	Experienced green lovers; a little goes a long way
Collard greens	Milder than kale, large leaves	Rotation when kale feels too strong
Fresh herbs	Bright and aromatic	See below — the flavour lifters

Herbs: the small handful that changes everything

Mint cools and freshens, and pairs beautifully with pineapple, melon-style fruit and chocolate notes. Parsley is clean and grassy; it lifts citrus and cucumber blends. Cilantro (coriander leaf) is bold and citrusy — wonderful in savoury blends, divisive elsewhere, so add a little first. Basil is sweetly fragrant and lovely with berries and grapes. Ginger (a root, but used like a herb here) warms and wakes a blend up; a small chunk is plenty. Garlic belongs only in savoury blends, one small clove at a time.

> 🌿 Rotate your greens. Do not use the same green every single day for months. Spinach on Monday, romaine on Tuesday, chard on Wednesday, kale on Thursday — rotation gives you a wider mix of nutrients and keeps your palate interested. If a green tastes too strong, use half as much and add more fruit; build up gradually.

Greens checklist:

- ☐ Wash greens well and dry them before blending or storing.
- ☐ Remove tough stems from kale, chard and collards.
- ☐ Start bitter greens (dandelion) at a few leaves, not a handful.
- ☐ Use celery leaves too — they carry plenty of flavour.

The Fruits Guide

Fruit does three jobs in a smoothie: it sweetens, it gives body, and it carries flavour. Understanding the difference between base fruits (which create the creamy structure) and flavour fruits (which add sparkle on top) is what turns random blending into reliable, delicious results.

Base fruits — the creamy builders

Banana is the classic: sweet, thick, and forgiving. Freeze ripe bananas in halves for the coldest, creamiest texture. Avocado adds silkiness and healthy fats with very little sweetness — ideal when you want creaminess without more sugar. Mango is sunny, thick and fibre-rich, fresh or frozen. Peach is softer and gentler, lovely fresh or frozen. Pear is best used fresh (never frozen), mild, fibrous and low in sugar for a fruit. Figs, frozen, are honeyed and luxurious. Coconut — as milk or flesh — adds richness and a holiday flavour.

Flavour fruits — the sparkle

Berries (blueberry, strawberry, raspberry, blackberry, cranberry, grapes) are small, colourful, rich in plant compounds, and relatively low in sugar. They also decide the colour of your glass — blueberry turns everything purple. Pineapple is the great rescuer: its brightness can lift even a very green blend. Orange pairs famously well with spinach. Kiwi is tart, vivid, and very high in vitamin C — peel it first, fresh or frozen. Lemon and lime juice brighten everything, balance sweetness, and help a stored smoothie keep its colour a little longer. Pomegranate seeds add jewel-like tartness; de-seed under water in a bowl to keep the mess down. Apple adds crunch-sweet freshness; use it fresh, cored, and unpeeled if you like.

> 🌿 Frozen fruit is your friend. Frozen mango, pineapple, berries, banana and avocado give a thick, cold, ice-cream-like texture without watering the blend down with ice. Freeze fruit yourself when it is ripe and cheap (see Part 2), keep each fruit in its own labelled bag, and use within three to six months.

Fruit checklist:

- ☐ One base fruit + one flavour fruit is a complete blend.
- ☐ Frozen fruit replaces ice — do not add both unless you like it very thick.
- ☐ Taste the fruit first: a sour mango needs a riper banana beside it.
- ☐ Keep lemons and limes on hand at all times; they fix more blends than anything else.

Superfoods, Seeds & Powders

“Superfood” is a loose word. In plain terms, it means a food that packs a lot of nutrition into a small amount. The good news: most of the superfoods in this book are ordinary seeds, oats and pantry powders — affordable, long-lasting, and easy to use. Exotic powders are optional extras, never requirements. Every recipe in this book works without them, and most work beautifully with nothing fancier than fruit, greens and water.

Boost	What it adds	How to use it
Chia seeds	Fibre, plant omega fats, protein	1 tbsp, straight in; thickens as it sits
Flaxseed	Fibre and plant omega fats	1 tbsp ground; store ground flax in the fridge
Hemp seeds	Protein and healthy fats, mild taste	1–2 tbsp; blends invisibly
Sesame seeds	Trace minerals, fibre, nutty flavour	1 tbsp; suits sweet and savoury blends
Sunflower seeds	Vitamin E, minerals, fibre	¼ cup or less; a gentle crunch if under-blended
Rolled oats	Fibre, slow energy, thickness	½ cup, ideally soaked overnight (see Part 2)
Raw cacao	Deep chocolate flavour, plant compounds	1–2 tbsp; pair with banana and nut butter
Matcha powder	Gentle lift, vivid colour, antioxidants	½ tsp; a little is plenty
Spirulina	Deep green colour, concentrated nutrients	½–1 tsp; strong flavour — start small
Acai powder	Berry depth and colour	1 tbsp; pairs with mango and banana
Goji berries	Sweet-tart chew, colour	⅓ cup, dried or frozen

Green superfood powder	Concentrated greens, convenience	1 scoop when fresh greens run out
Protein powder	Protein for fuller, meal-style blends	1 scoop; choose a flavour that suits the fruit

Should you use protein powder? Only if it serves a purpose. Nut butters, seeds, oats, nut milks and greens already contribute protein. If you train hard, want a fuller meal replacement, or struggle to stay full, a good-quality powder — ideally one with a short, understandable ingredient list — can help. Choose neutral flavours for fruit blends, and chocolate or vanilla where the recipe already leans that way. You never need a powder to make a smoothie "count".

> 🌿 Store boosts well. Keep seeds and powders in tightly lidded jars in a cool, dry cupboard, away from heat and light. Ground flaxseed keeps best in the fridge. Buy small amounts of anything new, taste it in one blend, and only then buy a bigger pack.

Liquid Bases

Every smoothie needs liquid — not just for texture, but to protect your blender. Too little liquid strains the motor and leaves chunks circling above the blades; too much gives you flavoured water. Start with the amount listed, blend, then adjust. Different blenders need slightly different amounts, and frozen fruit needs a little more coaxing than fresh.

Base	Character	Choose it when…
Filtered water	Neutral, light, free	Always works; lets fruit and greens shine

Almond milk	Light, nutty, creamy	You want creaminess without heaviness; buy unsweetened
Coconut milk	Rich, tropical, filling	Pairing with pineapple, mango or cacao
Almond-coconut milk	Nutty and rich	You want the best of both; buy unsweetened
Coconut water	Light, subtly sweet	You want more than water, less than nut milk
Chilled matcha tea	Fresh, gently lifting	Matcha blends; brew, chill, then blend
Fresh juice	Sweet, intense	Use sparingly, pressed fresh, mixed with water

A useful habit: use half nut milk, half water for creamy blends that feel too rich, and room-temperature water for everything else — the frozen fruit supplies the cold. If a blend is too thick, add liquid a splash at a time. You can always thin a smoothie; you cannot easily un-thin one, except by adding more frozen fruit.

> Watch the label. Flavoured and sweetened nut milks often carry added sugar. “Unsweetened” and “unflavoured” are the words to look for. The same goes for juices: a glass of shop-bought juice is far sweeter than the whole fruit it came from.

The Flavour-Mixing Formula

Great blends follow a simple pattern. Learn it, and you can invent your own with whatever is in the fridge.

The 4-part formula

1. Liquid (1–1½ cups). Water, nut milk, coconut water or chilled tea.

2. Green (1–2 cups or a handful or two). One mild green to start; rotate through the week.
3. Base fruit (about 1 cup). Banana, mango, avocado, peach, pear or figs — the creamy anchor.
4. Flavour + boost. A flavour fruit, a herb or spice, and optionally a seed, oat or powder boost.

Combinations that almost always work

Base fruit	Happy partners
Banana	Any berry · pear · cacao · peanut or almond butter · cinnamon
Avocado	Pineapple · pear · pomegranate · lime · spinach
Mango	Pineapple · pomegranate · coconut · mint · ginger
Peach	Berries · banana · almond butter · vanilla
Pear	Banana · lemon · ginger · spinach · cinnamon
Pineapple	Coconut milk · mango · mint · ginger · spinach

Spices are your finishing touch: a dash of cinnamon, a grating of nutmeg, a little vanilla extract, or pumpkin spice can turn a plain blend into something that tastes considered. For savoury blends, reach for cayenne, black pepper, garlic and a pinch of sea salt instead.

What to leave out

Skip table sugar, artificial sweeteners, syrups and refined sweeteners. Fruit is the sweetener here — if a blend is not sweet enough, add more ripe fruit, or one or two pitted dates, rather than reaching for a packet or bottle. Powdered sweeteners and syrups train your palate to expect intense sweetness; whole fruit retrains it towards gentler, real sweetness. Give it two weeks and you will taste the difference. The same goes for anything you would not happily eat on its own: if an ingredient needs disguising with sugar to be bearable, it does not belong in your glass.

> 🌿 The taste-and-adjust habit. Always dip a spoon in before pouring. Too thick? More liquid. Too thin? More frozen fruit. Not cold enough? Ice or more frozen fruit. Too bitter? More fruit or a date. Too sweet? More water or a handful of spinach. Too bland? Cinnamon, vanilla, citrus or a pinch of spice. Almost every blend can be rescued in thirty seconds.

Part 2 · In the Kitchen

🌿 SET UP ONCE, BLEND IN MINUTES EVERY DAY

Choosing a blender

Your blender is the one piece of equipment that matters. A high-powered blender (a strong motor, sturdy jar, and blades that pull food down) will turn frozen fruit and leafy greens silky in under a minute. A basic blender can still make lovely smoothies — it may just need more liquid, smaller pieces, and a little patience, with pauses to push ingredients down with a spoon (lid off, blender off, always).

When you shop, look for: motor power (higher handles frozen fruit better), jar size (big enough for two servings), ease of cleaning, and reviews from people who blend daily, not just occasionally. If you are only testing the habit, a modest personal blender is a fine start. If you blend daily, investing in power pays for itself in texture — and in a machine that lasts. A food processor is not a substitute: its shape and blades are made for chopping, not for the vortex a smoothie needs.

Quick-start equipment checklist

- ☐ Blender (any working blender to start; high-powered when you are ready)
- ☐ Sharp knife and chopping board
- ☐ Measuring cups and spoons
- ☐ Tall glasses or jars with lids
- ☐ Zip-top freezer bags + a marker pen for labelling
- ☐ A colander, clean towels or a salad spinner
- ☐ Small jars with lids for seeds, oats and powders
- ☐ A spoon for tasting (the most important tool of all)

Shopping, washing & storing

Shopping. Buy organic when it fits your budget — leafy greens, celery, carrots, berries, lemons and apples first — and do not let "perfect" shopping stop you starting. Local, seasonal and ripe beats imported and flawless. A smoothie made from ordinary supermarket produce still beats no smoothie at all. Grow herbs on a windowsill if you can; mint and parsley are forgiving.

Washing. Rinse all produce under clean running water, even if you plan to peel it. Wash leafy greens leaf by leaf, or soak briefly in clean water and rinse again. A short soak in a vinegar-water mix (about ½ cup white vinegar to 2 cups water, five minutes, then a clean-water rinse) can help; it may slightly soften delicate leaves. Dry with a clean towel or salad spinner — wet greens spoil faster. There is no need to rewash bags marked "ready-to-eat" or "triple washed".

Storing. Never leave leafy greens sitting in the wet bag they came in. Once washed and dried, store them in a clean container or bag lined with a dry towel, in the fridge. Keep cut produce refrigerated, use ripe fruit promptly, and freeze what you cannot use in time (below). Herbs keep longest standing in a jar of water in the fridge, loosely covered.

> 🌿 The 7-minute habit. With everything washed and fruit pre-frozen, a smoothie takes about seven to ten minutes from walking into the kitchen to a clean blender. Without any preparation, allow twelve to fifteen. Preparation is the whole difference — which is why the freezer and the soak-ahead jar are your best friends.

Freezing fruit (do it right, once)

Freezing extends the life of ripe fruit from days to months, and gives your blends their thick, cold body. A few rules make all the difference:

- Freeze each fruit separately, in labelled bags with the fruit name and date. Use the oldest bags first, within three to six months.
- Freeze only what freezes well: banana (peeled, halved), mango, pineapple (peeled, core removed, wedged), berries (washed, dried, hulled if needed), peach (washed, chunked, no need to peel), avocado (peeled, chunked), figs, pomegranate seeds.
- Keep some fruit fresh only: apples, oranges, lemons, limes, grapes and pears are best used fresh, not frozen.
- Freeze in usable sizes. Halved bananas, wedged pineapple, chunked mango — so you can grab the amount a recipe needs without thawing a block.
- Spread on a tray first for berries and chunks if you have room, so they freeze separately, then bag them.

Soaking nuts, seeds & oats

Many recipes in this book list soaked nuts, seeds or oats. Soaking is simple: cover them with filtered water (or the milk a recipe lists) in a jar, cover, and leave in the fridge overnight — six to eight hours. Drain and rinse before blending. Soaked walnuts lose their sharp, tannic edge and turn buttery; soaked almonds soften and blend silkier; soaked oats turn creamy and far easier to blend.

Short on time? For oats only, there is a shortcut: blitz the dry oats alone in the blender for about 30 seconds until powdery, then add the rest of the ingredients. For nuts, a quick two-hour soak is better than none. Make soaking part of your evening routine: one jar, one minute, and tomorrow morning is already half-made.

The 5-step blend method

1. Liquid first. Pour the liquid base into the jar. This protects the blades and gets the vortex moving.
2. Greens next. Add leafy greens and soft fresh ingredients. Blend 20–30 seconds until no leafy flecks remain.
3. Fruit and extras. Add frozen fruit, powders, seeds, nut butter and spices. Blend until thick and smooth.
4. Pause and push. If frozen chunks circle without catching, stop the blender, push them down with a spoon, replace the lid, and blend again.
5. Taste, adjust, pour. Dip a spoon in. Adjust with the fixes table below, then pour and enjoy immediately.

Texture fixes — rescue any blend

Problem	Fix
Too thick	Add liquid a splash at a time and re-blend briefly.
Too thin	Add frozen banana, avocado, mango or a few ice cubes; re-blend.
Not cold enough	Add ice, or more frozen fruit for coldness plus flavour.
Bitter / not sweet enough	Add more of the same fruit, a riper banana, or one or two pitted dates.
Too sweet	Add water to dilute, or a handful of mild greens such as spinach.
Too bland	Add cinnamon, nutmeg, vanilla, citrus juice — or, for savoury blends, garlic, cayenne or a pinch of salt.
Chalky or gritty	Blend longer; add liquid; soak oats/nuts next time; grind seeds finer.

Storing smoothies & cleaning up

Fresh is best. A smoothie tastes brightest straight from the blender, and its colour and texture change within a few hours in the fridge as ingredients oxidise and separate. If you must store one, keep it in a sealed jar in the fridge for a few hours at most, stir or shake before drinking, and spoon off or stir in any thin layer on top — it is harmless. Smoothies are not a make-ahead food; instead, make preparation ahead (washed greens, frozen fruit, soaked oats) so blending itself stays quick.

Cleaning: rinse the jar with warm water and a little washing-up liquid immediately after pouring, before anything dries on. Pressed for time? Give the jar a quick swirl of warm water, pop it to one side, and come back to the proper wash later. Never let a blender jar sit dirty overnight — dried smoothie is far harder to remove than fresh.

> Blender safety: always stop the blender and remove the lid before pushing ingredients down with a spoon. Never put hands or utensils near moving blades. Keep the lid on while blending, and hold it down for the first seconds with frozen ingredients.

Part 3 · Recipes by Benefit

🌿 ONE BLENDER · REAL INGREDIENTS · MINUTES EACH

All 116 blends are grouped by benefit, so you can open the book at the feeling you want today. Each blend appears exactly once, in one group only, and keeps its original number — so a favourite you find here is easy to find again in the Finder and the Index. Each recipe makes one large serving or two smaller ones. If your blender is small, halve the recipe rather than overfilling the jar. Always taste before pouring, and make each blend your own with the swap lines. Tick the boxes as you go — by the end of this section you will have a map of exactly what you love.

GROUP 1 OF 6 · PART 3

Lose Weight — Light & Lean

These blends stay light on purpose. Water-rich fruit, plenty of greens and very little added richness mean each glass feels fresh and easy, while the fibre helps you feel full. They are not about skipping meals or going without — they are about choosing blends that leave you comfortable, hydrated and ready for the rest of the day. Pair them with balanced meals and regular movement, and let steady habits do the quiet work over time.

Best for: lighter mornings and days when you want to feel satisfied without heaviness.

Wake Me Up Green Essence

A bright, easy blend built around banana and orange, balanced by kale and spinach. It is made to keep you full: the creamy base, fibre and healthy fats mean it works as a proper breakfast or a satisfying lunch when time is short.

Green Lover | Meal Replacement

5 MINUTES · 1 LARGE GLASS · 1 BLENDER

INGREDIENTS

- A small handful fresh oregano
- 1 frozen banana
- 1 handful spinach
- 2 large leaves of kale, without stem
- 1 peeled orange
- ⅓ cup soaked walnuts
- 1 cup filtered water

METHOD

1. Soak-ahead: soak the nuts or seeds listed overnight in filtered water, then drain and rinse.
2. Pour in the liquid first, add the greens and soft fresh ingredients, and blend 20–30 seconds until the greens vanish.
3. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
4. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

LOSE WEIGHT · RECIPE № 68 OF 116

Spicy Sweet Potato Shake

68

A bright, easy blend built around sweet potato. Gently sweet rather than sugary, it keeps the fruit in check and lets the savoury, herbal notes come through.

Beginner | Low Fruit

5 MINUTES · 1 LARGE GLASS · 1 BLENDER

INGREDIENTS

- 1¼ cups almond milk
- ⅔-1 cup cooked mashed chilled sweet potato
- ¼ tsp turmeric
- ¾ tsp cinnamon
- 2 ice cubes
- 1 tbsp almond butter

METHOD

1. Use sweet potato that you have baked, peeled and chilled until cold — warm potato will not blend into a shake.
2. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
3. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

Simple ingredients, generous flavour: mango and carrot carry this blend, with romaine and parsley keeping it fresh and green. Light, hydrating and clean-tasting, it is the kind of blend you reach for when you want to feel refreshed rather than weighed down.

Quick | Green Lover | Detox & Cleanse

5 MINUTES · 1 LARGE GLASS · 1 BLENDER

INGREDIENTS

- 1 medium carrot
- 1 cup frozen mango
- A small handful of parsley
- 6–7 leaves of romaine lettuce
- 1 scoop green superfood powder

METHOD

1. Pour in the liquid first, add the greens and soft fresh ingredients, and blend 20–30 seconds until the greens vanish.
2. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
3. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

GROUP 3 OF 6 · PART 3

Immunity & Defence

This group gathers the blends richest in the foods we reach for when we want to look after ourselves: citrus and kiwi, berries, ginger, turmeric, garlic and matcha. Colourful, sharp and warming in turn, they add generous amounts of vitamin C and plant compounds to everyday eating. Think of them as one enjoyable part of a broader pattern — good food, good sleep and fresh air — rather than a shield on their own.

Best for: colder months, busy weeks, and days when you want something bright and vitamin-rich.

Chia Mango Sunrise

18

If you like your smoothies fruity rather than grassy, start here: mango and banana. The greens all but disappear into the fruit, which makes this a kind first step if green smoothies still feel new to you.

Hidden Green

5 MINUTES · 1 LARGE GLASS · 1 BLENDER

INGREDIENTS

- 1 tbsp chia seeds
- 1 tsp sesame seeds
- 1–1½ frozen banana
- ½ cup frozen blueberries
- ½ cup frozen mango
- ⅓ cup soaked raw almonds
- 1 cup filtered water

METHOD

1. Soak-ahead: soak the nuts or seeds listed overnight in filtered water, then drain and rinse.
2. Pour in the liquid first, add the greens and soft fresh ingredients, and blend 20–30 seconds until the greens vanish.
3. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
4. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

Optional boost: ½ lemon, peeled · A small chunk of ginger

METHOD

1. Pour in the liquid first, add the greens and soft fresh ingredients, and blend 20–30 seconds until the greens vanish.
2. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
3. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

The Hawaiian Pink

This one leads with pineapple and strawberries. It is made to keep you full: the creamy base, fibre and healthy fats mean it works as a proper breakfast or a satisfying lunch when time is short.

Meal Replacement | Beginner

5 MINUTES · 1 LARGE GLASS · 1 BLENDER

INGREDIENTS

- ½ cup gluten-free rolled oats
- 1 cup coconut milk
- 1 cup fresh pineapple
- 4 frozen strawberries
- 1 tbsp peanut butter

METHOD

1. Soak-ahead: soak the oats overnight in the milk listed, covered in the fridge. Tip the whole lot, soaking liquid and all, into the blender.
2. Pour in the liquid first, add the greens and soft fresh ingredients, and blend 20–30 seconds until the greens vanish.
3. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
4. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

Swap: Almond butter for peanut butter

Optional boost: 1 tsp hemp seeds

The Unbelievable Fig Rapture

Avocado meets figs in a glass that tastes like a treat — while kale quietly does the nourishing work underneath. It is made to keep you full: the creamy base, fibre and healthy fats mean it works as a proper breakfast or a satisfying lunch when time is short.

Quick | Meal Replacement

5 MINUTES · 1 LARGE GLASS · 1 BLENDER

INGREDIENTS

- 1 frozen peeled avocado
- ⅓ cup fresh white grapes
- 4 frozen figs
- 3–4 fresh kale leaves without stalk
- 1 cup almond milk
- 1 tbsp almond butter

METHOD

1. Pour in the liquid first, add the greens and soft fresh ingredients, and blend 20–30 seconds until the greens vanish.
2. Add the frozen fruit, powders, seeds and the rest. Blend until thick and creamy, pausing once to push the mixture down.
3. Taste, then adjust: more liquid if too thick, more frozen fruit if too thin. Pour and enjoy straight away.

Part 4 · 7-Day Kickstart Plan & Gentle 3-Day Reset

🌿 ONE WEEK TO FIND YOUR RHYTHM

The Kickstart is simple: one smoothie a day for seven days, plus your normal balanced meals. No fasting, no extremes. Each day pairs a morning blend with an optional second blend for the afternoon. Shop once, prep on Sunday evening (wash greens, freeze fruit, soak oats), and the week runs itself.

Day	Morning blend	Optional second blend	Focus
Mon	№ 1 · Green Mango Chill	№ 16 · Citrus Superload	Start gentle: mild greens, familiar fruit
Tue	№ 5 · Green Grape Delight	№ 35 · Sweet Creamy Delight	Hydration and freshness
Wed	№ 9 · The Kiwi-Parsley Rapture	№ 66 · Super Green Glow	Light and cleansing
Thu	№ 11 · Love Me Some Kale	№ 49 · Citrus Pear Sensation	Build green confidence
Fri	№ 17 · My Green Fantasy	№ 101 · So Green So Good	Herbs and variety
Sat	№ 30 · Brave Dandelion Buzz	№ 96 · Crystal Green Lagoon	Try something bolder
Sun	№ 101 · So Green So Good	№ 104 · The Green Dragon	Review your favourites; repeat what you loved

All titles above link from the Recipe Finder. If a day's blend does not suit you, swap it for any blend with the same tags — the plan is a guide, not a prescription.

Kickstart shopping list

Tick as you shop. Quantities cover one smoothie a day for a week, with a little spare.

☐ Spinach — 4 large handfuls ☐ Kale — 1 bunch ☐ Romaine — 1 head ☐ Swiss chard — 1 bunch

☐ Celery — 1 bunch ☐ Cucumbers — 3 ☐ Fresh mint, parsley & cilantro — 1 bunch each

☐ Bananas — 8, ripe (freeze half) ☐ Frozen mango — 2 cups ☐ Frozen pineapple — 2 cups

☐ Avocados — 3 ☐ Blueberries & strawberries — 1 punnet each ☐ Grapes — 1 bunch

☐ Oranges — 4 ☐ Lemons — 4 ☐ Limes — 2 ☐ Kiwi — 2 ☐ Apples — 3 ☐ Pears — 3

☐ Fresh ginger — 1 piece ☐ Filtered water ☐ Almond or coconut milk — 1 carton (unsweetened)

☐ Chia seeds, hemp seeds or flaxseed — 1 small pack ☐ Cinnamon ☐ Ice

Gentle 3-Day Reset — a calmer kind of fresh start

This is not a fast, and it is not a punishment. The Gentle Reset is three smoothie-focused days designed to help you pause, simplify, and notice how your body feels when food is simple, colourful and mostly plants. Read the safety note below before you begin, and do not start if you are unwell, pregnant, breastfeeding, managing diabetes or another condition, or taking medication that affects eating — without talking to your doctor first.

How it works

- Morning and midday: a green smoothie from the Detox & Cleanse blends (see the Finder), built on water, fruit, vegetables and herbs. Drink as much as you need to feel satisfied — never go hungry on purpose.

- Evening: one light, balanced meal of simple whole foods — for example vegetables, grains or legumes, and a protein you enjoy — eaten slowly, without screens if you can manage it.
- Through the day: plenty of water, and herbal tea if you like. Keep caffeine as you normally would rather than stopping suddenly, which can cause headaches.
- Keep it simple: during the three days, skip protein powders, nut milks, oils, nuts and seeds in your blends, so digestion stays light. Return to them afterwards.
- Rest and routine: choose a quiet stretch of days, stay near your kitchen, go to bed a little earlier, and take a gentle walk each day if you feel like it.

A suggested shape for each reset day

When	What
On waking	A large glass of water. Wait until you feel hungry before blending.
Morning	One Detox & Cleanse green smoothie (e.g. № 1, № 9 or № 66).
Midday	A second, different green smoothie. Rotate your greens from the day before.
Afternoon	Water or herbal tea. A third small smoothie only if you are genuinely hungry.
Evening	One light, balanced whole-food meal. Eat slowly; stop when comfortably full.
Night	Note how you feel in the tracker (Part 5): energy, sleep, mood, digestion.

> ⚠ Safety first. This reset is general wellness guidance, not medical advice. Do not attempt it if you are pregnant, breastfeeding, under 18, living with diabetes, kidney disease, an eating disorder history, or any condition that affects how you eat — unless your doctor has agreed it is suitable for you. Stop at once and seek advice if you feel dizzy, faint, unwell, or unusually tired. Children, older adults and anyone recovering from illness should not follow a restricted plan without professional guidance. If in doubt, skip the reset and simply enjoy one smoothie a day — that alone is a wonderful habit.

Coming out of the reset

On day four, return to your normal balanced eating gradually, keeping one green smoothie a day if you enjoyed it. The point of a reset is not the three days themselves — it is the clarity they give you about what makes you feel good, so you can carry one or two of those habits forward. Most people find the lasting win is simple: a green blend most mornings, more water, and an earlier night.

Part 5 · Make It Yours

🌿 RECIPES TEACH YOU — FORMULAS SET YOU FREE

Build-your-own formula worksheet

Use the 4-part formula from Part 1. Tick your choices, then blend. Photocopy this page (or copy it into a notebook) and use it again and again.

Next time I would change: _____

Swap chart — when the fridge says no

If you are out of…	Use instead…
Banana	½ avocado, or 1 cup mango, or 1 cup peach — for creaminess
Spinach	Romaine, chard, or baby kale in the same amount
Kale	Spinach or chard; use a little less at first if the flavour is strong
Almond milk	Any unsweetened nut milk, coconut milk, or half water / half nut milk
Coconut milk	Almond milk, or water plus 1 tbsp coconut shreds
Peanut butter	Almond butter, cashew butter, or sunflower seed butter
Honey / sweetener	More ripe fruit, or 1–2 pitted dates — no syrups needed
Lemon	Lime juice, or a splash of orange juice plus a little vinegar-free tartness from kiwi
Fresh ginger	A pinch of ground ginger, or extra mint and citrus
Protein powder	Leave it out, or add 2 tbsp hemp seeds + 1 tbsp nut butter
Oats (unsoaked)	Blitz dry oats alone for 30 seconds first, then proceed
Ice	Use frozen fruit instead — colder, thicker, more flavour

30-day habit tracker

One row a day. You do not need a perfect month — you need a visible one. Circle your energy from 1 (low) to 5 (bright) and note anything you observed.

Thank You — Keep Blending

🌿 BLEND NATURE. FEEL BETTER.

Thank you for choosing The Ultimate Smoothie Wellness Guide. If you have blended even one recipe from these pages, you have already done the hardest part: you started.

Keep it simple. Keep it green. Keep a lemon in the fridge and frozen banana in the freezer, and you will never be more than five minutes from something good.

When you find your favourites, make them often. When you get bored, change one ingredient and start again. When life gets busy, return to the simplest blend you love — that is the one that will carry you through.
